"I do think we are in the middle of a revolution. I'm a very old man and I don't think I've ever been in a room with more self belief, more sense that we are on the edge of something, more sense that there's a world out there to be won. I've never had this experience before....it's awesome."

Excited 2015 provides those who are passionate about education with a unique opportunity to challenge, share and engage with others on the future of Irish education. Join students, teachers, researchers, academics, ed-tech companies, industry and government agencies in exploring the power of technology to transform teaching and learning.

This year's theme "Growing our Network - Recruiting Revolutionaries" is a call to all those who have an interest in digital learning and a yearning for real change to join us at Excited 2015.
